This new Digital Addendum is offered on the Net to anyone who might find it useful – especially those many people with an interest in the activities of the German Air Force in WWI. In particular, it is offered to those of you who have bought my new and expanded book. Thanks for that, and so I'm offering this as a significant further aid to your research and reading whenever you pick up TSTBII. Finally, it is directed at those who are thinking about buying a copy of this self-published effort – I want to convince you to buy one!

The Sky Their Battlefield II is overtly about the Allied war effort in the air between 1914 and 1918. It examines the stories of almost 17,000 Allied airmen from Britain, the Commonwealth, and the USA across six-hundred thousand words, and looks at every day across all theatres of that great conflict.

Yet my book is not just about the Allied forces – there is another story, a second set of facts and detailed research lurking in its pages. This is the story of the German Air Force in 1914-18, told through the air fighting and the sacrifice of these 920 German and Austrian individuals now listed below. They link the reader with 3,500 separate entries in my book where events are described, this time seen from the German side.

The list includes every German or Austrian airman who made a combat claim involving British or American air services. Each airman is listed separately according to which unit they were chronologically flying with, so at a glance one can see an airman or ace's progression, as well as his changing intensity of air fighting during different phases of the war. The Roman numerals refer to the different theatres and parts of TSTBII where the information is found, listed by date. It's a unique listing, and in combination with my new book, opens up a huge new area of reference for its users.

Enjoy using it. And for those who are still wavering – buy my book by emailing me here!: at tstb2@outlook.com
